Style Guide

I created a style guide that could be followed to ensure consistency throughout the system. The system uses color in order to make the user's interaction easier and more predictable. It is used to assist in navigation, highlight important information, and create a more cohesive and enjoyable user experience.

Primary Colors

The primary color (red+yellow=orange) does generate sense of attraction, fascination and happiness.
However, this was not my primary reason to choose orange. For the selection, I tried out a bunch of colors like blue, red, green, purple, black, but I felt neither one of them fulfilled the purpose.
The primary color should not overpower the interface as I felt the color red did. Overpowering in the sense that the users should feel safe and sound while doing a critical task like billing. But the color red, as it signifies sense of warning or danger (at least intuitively), clearly was a no go for me.
And the color green, blue and black did not go with the restaurant setting.
What I was looking for was something that was uplifting, was not distracting, went with the restaurant setting and most importantly fulfilled its UI purposes. Hence, I chose the color orange as it checked all the boxes.
